Riesling and Friends

Few beverages in the world can hold the esteem that the supremely aromatic Riesling has globally, and at all the spectrum's ends - in Germany and Austria, the wines that boast a purity and sweetness carried by a lick of structural acid and texture find themselves the most prized, where few Australian wine drinkers have grown without knowing the laser-dry styles of the Clare.

2018 Dom Valentine Riesling, Yarra Valley VIC 65

Undoubtedly one of the best Australian winemakers you've never heard of, Victoria's Dom Valentine comes with a heavy hitting resume and Riesling is definitely a strong suit - well worth a lash.

2018 Le Petit Vanguard Riesling, Clare Valley SA 58

2017 Frankland Estate 'Poison Hill' Riesling, Frankland River WA 68

2015 Hirsch Riesling 'Zöbing,' Kamptal AUT 77

2018 Mewstone Riesling, D'entrecasteaux Channel TAS 99

2017 Alzinger 'Mühlpoint' Grüner Veltliner Federspiel, Wachau AUT 92

A family winery on the banks of the Danube, the Alzingers work with the utmost respect for their environment and a minimal intervention philosophy in Vineyard and Cellar. This 'Mühlpoint' Federspiel is a bracing playoff between classic Grüner spicyness and the regional minerality for which Wachau is known.

2017 Gorrondona Bizkaiko Txakolina, Basque ESP 68

Never tried Txakoli ("Cha-ko-lee")? Not sure why you'd want to deprive your tastebuds of that refreshment, but ok...

2018 Ravensworth 'Rose De Florete' Nebbiolo Rose under Flor, Murrumbateman ACT 75

The Southern regions of France, starting at the Lower Rhone in the East and heading west across Provence and Languedoc, have been like a magnet for the young gamechangers of the French wine industry. Legendary Producer: Jean Francois Ganevat

If you said that Jean Francois Ganevat was the most famous living winemaker of the Jura, very few would argue. It's hard to dispute the legendary status of this guy, who makes a dizzying amount of different cuvees, all to exacting standards of Biodynamics, and what we could easily call 'Natural' Winemaking. - Ganevat Wines are as rare as unicorn's tears, and as delicious as you'd expect those tears to be. ## NEBBIOLO

King of Wines, Wine of Kings - Barolo is a (relatively) modern success story in what can be generously called The Old World. The World of Nebbiolo extends outside of DOCG boundaries and into the more accessible Langhe styles but will always exemplify a beautiful payoff between beauty and power. # The Big Boys

It's no secret that Australians like to drink big wines. From rich soils and loads of sunshine come rich sugars, rich flavours and big, high alcohol styles that has made Australian wine famous. As the Australian industry matures, the exploration of newer wine growing regions, and the observance of modern thinking towards wine making has ensured that what our wines make up in weight is not at the expense of complexity and finesse.

The Spirits Selection

Vodka 30 mL/60 mL

Vodka is a pretty relaxed category of spirit. Made from anything that contains starch and distilled in pretty much any way; as long as you can blast it up to high proof relatively quickly, you can produce vodka. High quality vodka, on the other hand, takes a little more craftsmanship.

Mainland Scotland

The largest of the Scottish whisky sub-regions, Highland and Speyside whiskies are generally full-bodied, rich and sweet. Rarely if ever smokey, often joyously aged in ex-sherry barrels to bring a variety of flavours, from dried fruits and spices to nuts, honey and caramel. The further south you travel, generally, you find whiskies lighter, grassier and more perfumed.

Tequila/Mezcal

Tequila and Mezcal are both a part of one big, happy family - made in Mexico from members of the Agave family, that's pretty much where the similarities end. Tequila, from the Blue Weber Agave, speaks of sweetness and soft fruit, whereas Mezcal, made from any member of the Agave family, presents mineral, faint smoke and earth.
